Notes.
These tables include exam results for all examinees—not just those who have applied (or are planning to apply) to medical school. They also include multiple exam results for examinees who took the MCAT exam more than once during the testing years, but exclude exam results for administrations in which examinees opted to void their exam scores.

The column labeled "Percentile Rank" provide, for exams administered from January 2012 to September 2014, the percentage of exam results that were equal to or less than each score point.[1]

For example, 79 percent of MCAT Total scores were equal to or less than 30 across all exams administered from January 2012 to September 2014.

_____
[1]Prior versions of these tables (pre-2012), as well as current score reporting systems maintained by AMCAS report the "Percentile Rank Range" in these columns rather than a single percentile rank. The percentile rank columns in the current tables correspond to the upper bound of the percentile rank ranges provided in these other versions. The lower bounds in these other versions essentially serve to provide continuity across score points.
